Grandloving: Making Memories with Your Grandchildren, 5th ed
Babies to Teens—Near or Far
How to be the Grandparent Every Child Wants!

Grandparents and grandkids go together like peanut butter and jelly! But even great family relationships can benefit from a little help. Sue Johnson, Julie Carlson, and Elizabeth Bower—a unique mother, daughter-in-law, daughter team—offer clever, heartfelt ideas and thoughtful advice in their new Grandloving: Making Memories with Your Grandchildren. In this information-packed, updated and expanded fifth edition, the authors show America's over 100 million grandparents how to:

- ♥ Have a successful visit with a new grandbaby while supporting older siblings
- ♥ Create over 225 easy, inexpensive, fun projects and gifts, including family photo puzzles, spaghetti paintings, and peek-a-boo books, using materials most grand have in their homes
- ♥ Adapt advice from 350 families around the world who share their best ideas to make visits memorable and to initiate unique family traditions during the holidays—or anytime!
- ♥ Take a coin-flip walk, exchange secret codes, create magical blooms,” make “Happy Face Pancakes”, create tunnels of fun, and explore science and the outdoors with a grandchild
- ♥ Learn ways to keep the distant grandchild close by turning his mailbox into a treasure chest
- ♥ Keep close with technology. Grandloving will show you how in a totally new chapter
- ♥ Find updated resources and discover the best books for grandkids from babies to teens

With expertise, warmth and “been there” humor, Sue, Julie, and Elizabeth, all moms and former teachers, offer exceptional tips and activities. This winner of eight National Parenting awards, is sure to become a treasured sourcebook not just for grandparents but for all who love kids, including married and separated parents, daycare providers, extended family, and teachers. If children or grandchildren are in your readers’ lives, they’ll appreciate the ideas and encouragement in Grandloving.
